

Kiting

What a word and what does it mean. For some it might mean a parent taking a child to let fly a constructed object to fly in the wind. In the criminal world of bouncing checks, it is a criminal process of writing a check on an account that has insufficient funds to cover funds of another account that has not sufficient funds. You bet you, there are criminal laws that state doing so is a crime. So a serious question arises as to what is the United States of America is a party too. Is the United States Federal reserve just kiting money to support an unsustainable action of the financial institution?

A recent Bloomberg article noted non-United States citizens are beginning to question the credibility of the United States. There are some that know saving the good name and/or the credibility of the United States of America will not come from within the borders of the United States of America as many see the government as a non-serious joke.

Damn right, everyone is searching for a piece of the pie. Some need a slice for nutrition to survive, some will take their slice and divide to maybe give illusion they own more of the pie.

A more appropriate analogy to apply would be a gallon of paint. Where a properly formulated gallon of paint covers up indiscretion: logic notes the thinning of paint beyond applicable use conceals nothing.

One can choose as one cares to choose but concern arises as to whether the United States governmental leaders are acting in good faith of not just for citizens of the United States of America but citizens are foreign lands. Actually, are United States government leaders more protecting kite flyers for personal self-interest?

This writer has understood for a long time that change in how the United States operates will not come from within, so from one American citizen to another, give credit to your foreign brother for their actions taking to restore the faith in the American Citizen, for I feel faith in the United States as a might make right government may have failed.

Forget not, the price paid for the United States of America to be free under God was paid by those who sought a better life for humanity.
